Consider the potential of owning property in Cape Verde. Cape Verde is socially and politically stable, with friendly people, year-round sunshine, white sand beaches, pristine seas, stunning scenery and an exotic mix of Portuguese and West African culture. Health services are enough good, and crime levels generally low. The consequent increase in visitor numbers is fuelling an emerging international property market. Water sports fans are the first attracted to these Atlantic islands, but there is a market developing for couples, families and even eco-tourism.

Because so much new development is taking place, most of the market is off plan. Whilst buy-to-lets are popular, many foreign purchasers are acquiring property primarily for their own use. Prices vary according to area and development, as each island has its own distinct character and will appeal to different groups of people.

Consider the popular locations in Cape Verde. The islands currently experiencing most interest from holiday makers are Sal, Boa Vista and Santiago, so it is there that most new development is taking place and the international property market is flourishing. Sal – Home to one of Cape Verde's international airports, this is the most developed of the islands as regards tourism.

We proud ourselves in being as professional, reliable, serious as possible and if you are thinking of selling your properties please contact us even for just an evaluation of the actual market value of your property. If you want to buy, please check our portfolio and don't hesitate to tell us what you are looking for in you can't find it on the website.
